CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

The Steering Committee of the Africa Initiative wishes to announce a call for applications to fund small projects, events, and speakers organized by students in autumn 2017 or spring 2018. We envision supporting a number of proposals in the $500-$1000 range that follow these guidelines:

• Projects must take place on the Duke campus or in the Durham community.
• Projects should be collaborative in nature, perhaps organized by a common theme (water, technology transfer, China-Africa) or as a way to develop new relationships across majors.
• Projects may take the shape of—but are not limited to—a speaker, workshop, reading group, service learning event, or film showing. If the proposal focuses in these areas, at least a portion of these activities should be open to all members of the Duke community.
• Groups that propose projects can be solely undergrads, graduate students, or a combination of the two.
• All proposals must provide the contact information of at least one member who will act as the project lead.

Deadline: October 31, 2017

Applications should be no longer than three pages and include the following:
• A description of the proposed activity.
• The anticipated participants and outcomes of the proposed activity.
• A budget.
• A description of potential participant groups.

Please submit applications to Meredith Watkins (meredith.watkins363@duke.edu) by October 31, 2017.
